

Year in Review – in a word – challenging!

As you look at it the against the backdrop of COVID 19, civil unrest, and the reality of systemic racism. It has been a difficult year for everyone. When our focus has always been on in person gatherings and events, to have that avenue shut down the board had to be creative and required that we pivot to new methods and processes to identify activities that impact the neighborhood and the city.

The KNA board focus has been to identify activities that impact our ability to provide timely communication of events across the neighborhood and the city; opportunities to focus on the environment, and safety.

The board has also worked to position KNA for the longer term and to support schools, local businesses, and each other. This work has included building a sustainable financial model and developing an equity statement to guide the work of the neighborhood association.

KNA will continue to focus on reaching out, educating, and listening to our neighbors. The learning and listening continues through our quarterly print newsletter, monthly eNewsletter, website and social media sites.

Thank you to all neighbors who support Kenny and strive to make it a better place for all through their involvement with organizations such as KORE, or events such as Earth Day.
